Transforming Our Approach to Domestic Violence

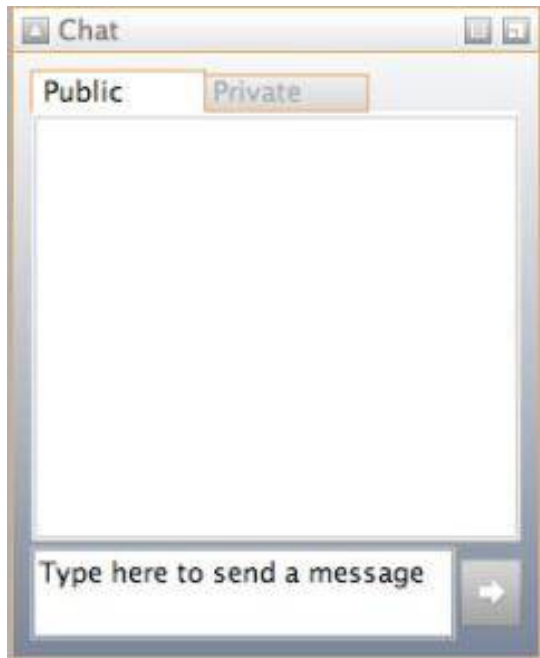

Pronouns

- Replaces a person's name when talking in the third-person
- Not preferred (not up for debate)
- While pronouns imply something about gender, they don't declare someone's gender identity

Examples:

- Ze/zir/zim
- He/him/his
- She/her/hers
- They/them/theirs
- Cie/hir/hirs (pronounced see/here/heres)

Gender Violence Fueled by Systemic Oppressions

Patriarchy, Racism Capitalism, and other Systemic Oppressions

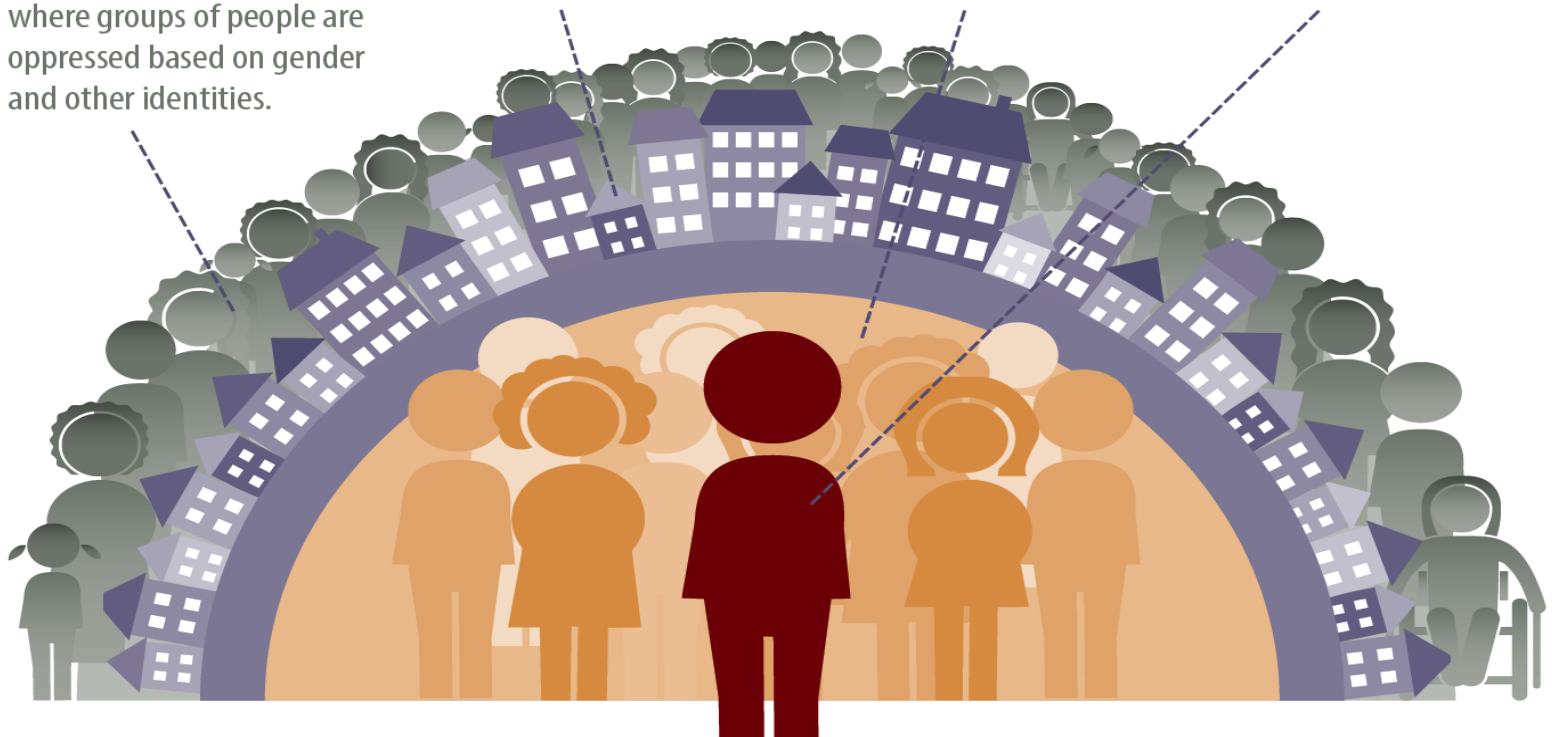

– Dynamic systems of power and dominance where groups of people are oppressed based on gender and other identities.

Government, Courts, Schools, Religious Institutions, and other

– May educate and enforce oppression and dominance.

Families, Friends, and
Peers – Influences us to accept discrimination (i.e. sexism), inequity (i.e. strict gender roles) or oppression.

Individuals - May choose to discriminate or use violence that is fueled by a dynamic system of power and dominance.

This illustration shows how individuals, families, friends, and peers, community, and larger societal institutions are interconnected. Individuals do not act in isolation and are influenced by contexts and social structures in which we live.

Theory of Change Process

Changes We Seek in the World

Compassionate communities with social equity and liberation for all human beings, where we see our own and each other's full humanity and everyone has the ability to thrive and fulfill their potential. Our dominant social narrative is one of acceptance, cooperation, and sustainability.

North Star Liberation for the Last Girl

Our Context

Multiple governmental, nongovernmental and global systems intersect with our focus of change

Strategies to Influence Social Change

Center Solutions on the Last Girl → Catalyze Change in Prevention & Response

While the story is that Idaho is conservative and intolerant, there is danger in a single story – we are also forward thinking and see how we are more alike than different.

Program and organizational membership are heterogenous, serve diverse populations, and are essential partners

Our Focus

Girls and women and people who are gender oppressed. Youth and young adults.

Culture of domination, exploitation, and extraction is manifested in multiple, intersecting systemic oppressions that create the conditions for gender violence

Current social, economic, and ecological disruption provides an opportunity for bold social change

Mobilize Movement

Our Issue

Gender violence fueled by multiple, intersecting systemic oppressions

Our Values

Compassion

We see each other's full humanity with love and kindness, and intentionally turn toward others to end violence and oppression.

Interconnection

We understand our interdependence and the importance of authentic mutual relationships with one another and our earth.

Lead Boldly

We cultivate an appetite for risk-taking, openness to possibilities, and going into the unknown.

Social Equity

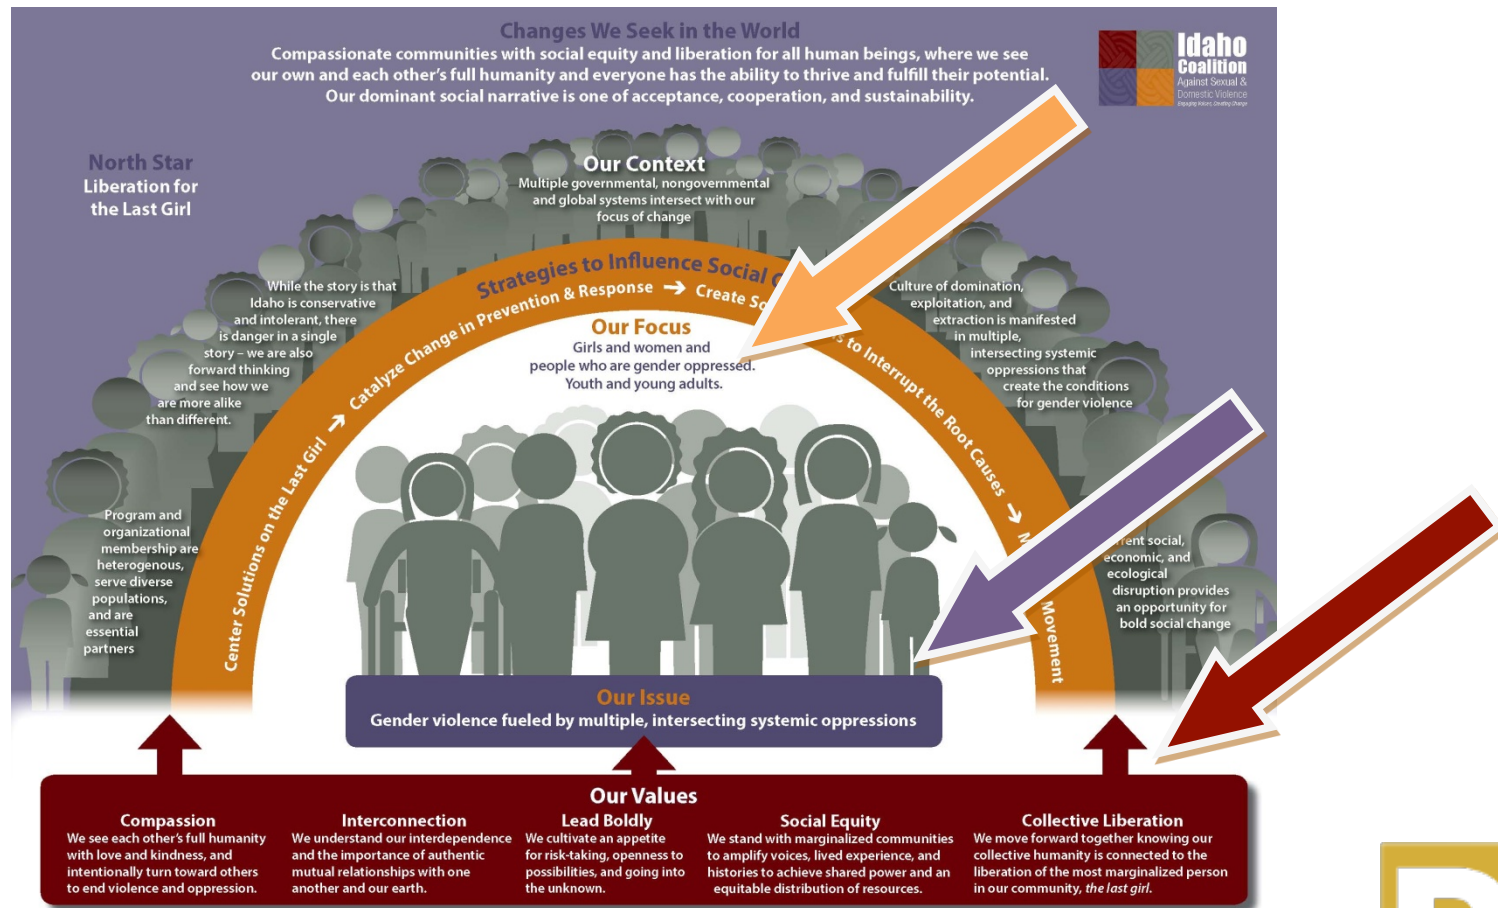

We stand with marginalized communities to amplify voices, lived experience, and histories to achieve shared power and an equitable distribution of resources.

Collective Liberation

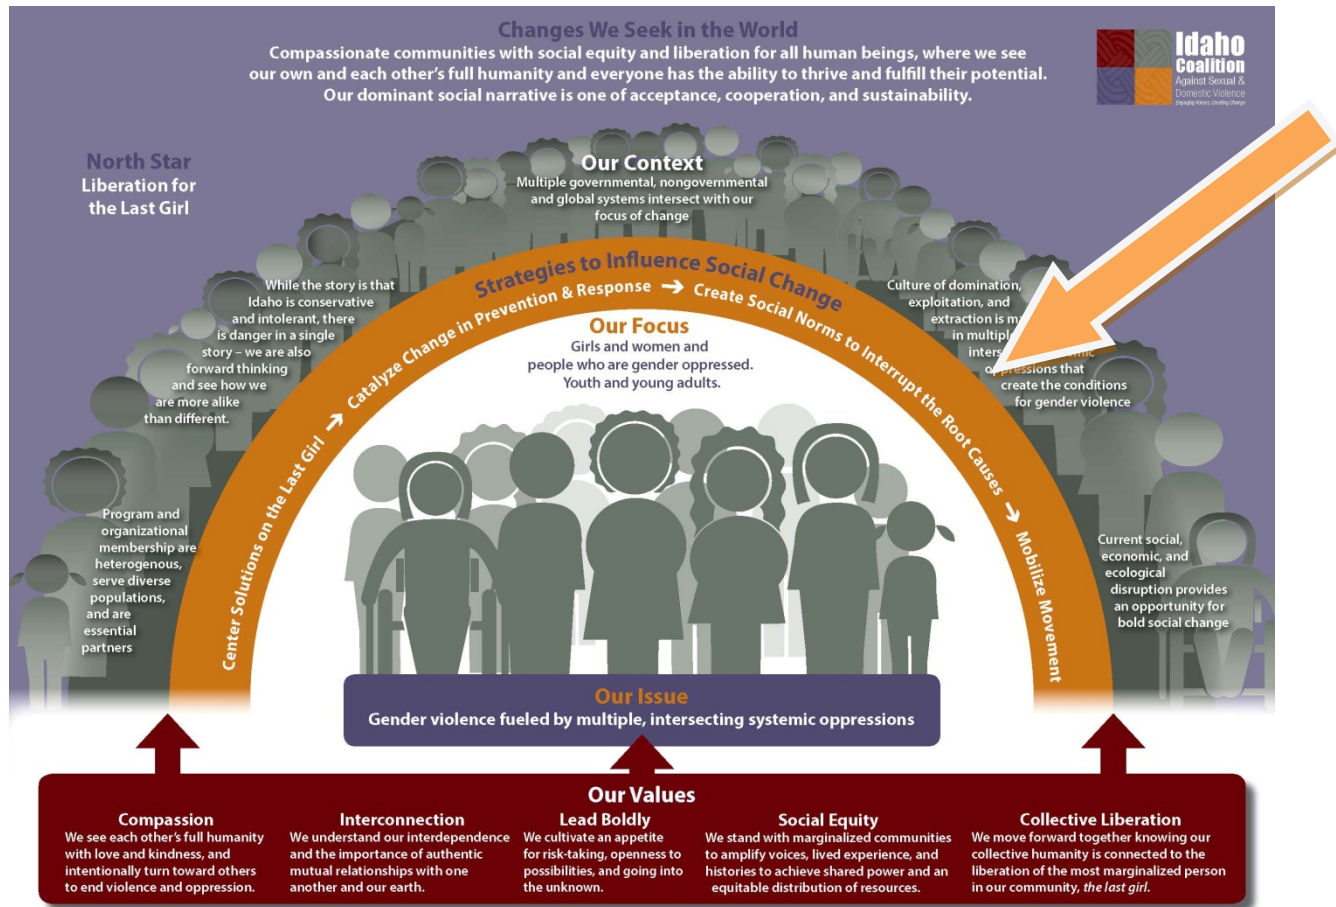

We move forward together knowing our collective humanity is connected to the liberation of the most marginalized person in our community, the last girl.

Can You Be a Waitress and a Feminist?

Brittany Bronson APRIL 17, 2015

LAS VEGAS — THIS week I will be sexually harassed on the job, and like many women in the Las Vegas service industry, I will count my tips at the end of my shift and decide that it is worth it.

This is not the most progressive statement for a self-described feminist like myself to make. Neither are a majority of my responses to the suggestive comments I receive.

During a recent shift, an older man sitting with his niece asked, “If I take you home, will you be as good to me?” I laughed. The next night, a man offered $1,000 for my phone number. I told him, “First I’ll need to see the cash.”
