Support Free Resources to Keep Children Safe

The CDC Foundation and Applied Curiosity Research are speaking with youth-serving organizations (YSOs) from around the country to learn more about how organizations approach child safety and child sexual abuse prevention in their organizations.

All are welcome to participate, and we're purposefully seeking feedback from YSOs that serve children in five priority communities:

- LGBTQ+,
- immigrant/refugee populations,
- indigenous/tribal communities,
- children with disabilities.
- and persons experiencing homelessness.

We recognize that children in these communities have endured disproportionate and historical trauma, have been excluded from research about CSA prevention, and are at disproportionate risk for experiencing abuse. We seek to elevate voices, using a culturally responsive lens, so our revised resources can include these perspectives and experiences.
