David Lee: Rose Wilde (private): when using these boolean techniques, are you saying this is also useful on search engines? I have used this technique in library research. also, don't forget to mention * (ex: child* means child, children, children's, anything that starts with child as the first five letters

I did all the words with "and"s i searched for nursing and sexual violence

nursing+prevention

nursing and sexual violence prevention

I just typed nursing and prevention in quotes

sexual violence prevention in nursing

"prevention" and "sexual violence prevention"

"nursing" and "violence Preventions"

"nursing" AND "prevention" AND "sexual violence" you folks are doing great with the technology's limitations!

We don't mind waiting for a second for you.

I've lost dial connection

(or at least I don't - didn't mean to speak for everyone!)

David Lee: Here is s helpful comment from Rose Wilde (private): Many gov't employees have access to limited access databases through their state library. You just have to contact the library or your HR dept to set up your access.

David Lee: Any Questions?

what is a good source on recent statistics on sexual violence?

it seems to only allow an entry when you indicate it is open

I've had the pleasure of publishing some articles on VAW Net - other authors should consider submitting their work. I'm not even an academic! :)

I am also interested in finding a reputable source for sexual violence stats

I always go to the nsvrc for those...

ok thanks ben

you're welcome.

folks, instead of google, try goodsearch.

go to www.goodsearch.com

Jennifer Grove: I would check out our website on the NSVRC. Please call us as well and we can access a listing of recent stats with citations that PCAR keeps. Also, check out the Data Sets resource on VAWnet.

every time you do a search, you can pick a nonprofit to get a donation! I've picked RAINN for my money to go to every time I do a search.

that's the Rape, Abuse and Incest National Network.

When you go to www.goodsearch.com, you can pick the nonprofit to get the proceeds - or, I think, add YOUR nonprofit as a recipient of funds!

Best of all, GoodSearch can become your search engine on the top of your web browser bar. They talk you through that on the website.

How do we check copyright issues?

Contact the site or organization for permission...that's one way.

Jennifer Grove: Yes - check with the author for copyright info.

Permission has to be in writing to be legal!

how did you access the picture right click on it and "save as"

The images on most sites are low-res images, not good for printing...

THANK YOU

there are lots of sites to get free "clip art"

Do you have an accurate listing mental health agencies with their languages availabilities?

or clip art to pay for

if you're looking for images for annual reports, etc.

Davy Long: Thank you

GoodSearch

can you please show how to get to the window on google that google scholar was on?

thank you so much. this was great information.

are there other free database?
